As you can see, the Competition will begin in January with Caerthen Twelfth Night and e in May with Coronation. Each individual competition event will have a separate article in the HERALD, explaining specifics regarding it. Entries will be scored and judged at these individual competition events, and winners in those categories will be announced. Scrolls will be awarded in the usual fashion for skill, excellence, and mastery. A prize will alsc awarded for category winners, as was done last year. Scores for those persons wishing to c pete for the Championship will be kept on file and added up at the last competition event, where the Champion as well as the second and third place winners will be determined.

Persons who are unable to attend all of the events they might want to, are encouraged t send entries to the individual event autocrats as long as they include return postage and a properly tagged as per the competition rules.

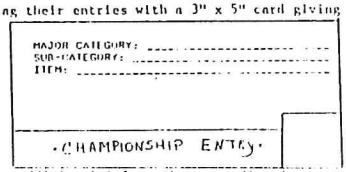
As stated above, prizes will be awarded for winners of the 23 individual competition categories. Last year local groups and individuals donated the prizes for these categories, while the Kingdom paid for the Grand Prize. Please donate again this year! It was an addec bonus for entrants to come away with a prize for their efforts. Contact Baron Eric, whose address appears at the end of this article, with your donations.

We need judges! Since there will be three judges per SUBCATEGORY, we will need as many judges as will volunteer to help with the Competition. If you would like to help, please contact the people listed below.

Registration Procedures: No advance registration will be required this year, but entrants are asked to tag their items the same way as last year. Championship entrants are asked to marked their entries with the words "CHAMPIONSHIP ENTRY" in red so that their scores can be added to others throughout the Competition.

This full notice will not be repeated in the Meiassis. Keep this copy.

1. Each entrant must tag their entries with a 3" x 5" card giving the following information:



2. The entrant may give additional information regarding documentation, method of construction, etc. on this card or attach additional documentation to the card with a stapler.
3. Each item will be marked with a sticker which will identify the item by the ENTRANT NUMBER and LETTER (example: 24F). This sticker, provided at the site, will be placed in the lower right hand corner of the 3" x 5" card. NO other form of identification will be used with the entries. In this way, we preserve anonymity as much as possible. These numbers will correspond to those listed on the entrant's individual competition event registration form (to be filled out at the event). These numbers will also be written on the judging form to identify each item to the judges.
4. Extra 3" x 5" cards will be available at the events for use in correcting errors only. All entrants must be responsible for marking their entries in this manner before the competition events. Entries will be refused if not properly marked.
5. If an item is entered in two different sub-categories, two separate cards should be made for that item. Both cards should be placed with the item, but in such a way as to allow judges to see that there are two distinct cards. THIS IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE ENTRANT! After the item has been judged in one sub-category, it will be placed with other entries in the next sub-category.

It is hoped that more people will benefit from this type of competition versus the traditional type. We won't know how well it will work until we have tried it once. Please prepare your entries and participate in this year's Competition! Come share your talents and learn those of others. For more information, please contact the following people:

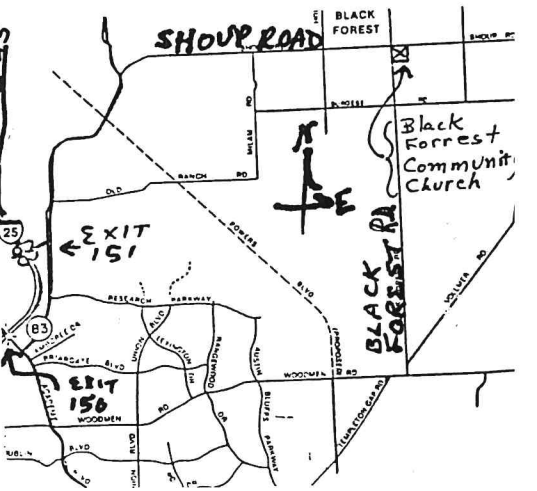
Candlemas Feast and Revel

Barony Dragonsspine will again be hosting Candlemas on January 30, 1988 at the Black Forest Community Church. The site will open at 4:00 p.m. for set-up. Opening court is scheduled for 5:00 and the first course will be served at 5:30. In the spirit of Candlemas, please bring your candles to help light the hall. The site is wet but the church requests wine only, please.

Site and Feast Fees

	Site	Feast	After January 15th, 1988 Site	Feast
Adults	$2.00	$7.50	$2.00	$10.00
Children (6 - 12)	$1.00	$3.75	$1.00	$5.00
Under 6	free	free



Milady Brilliana will be the feastocrat. Lord Harold Thredar is overall Autocrat. Checks made payable to S.C.A. - Barony Dragonsspine should be mailed to the Autocrat at the address below.

There will be dancing. There will be a "poison pie". There will be an auction. (Sorry, I am unable to guarantee that there will be another charpagne mink stole although we expect more fur pieces. In my insanity, there will be a female Tudor gown which will be altered to fit the buyer - unless the buyer is Sir Michael the Strange - I do have some principles.) Anyone wishing to contribute items for the auction please contact the Autocrat or the Barony Seneschal. I have room for two or three merchant's tables (first come first served). I am seeking bards for between-course entertainment. They will feast at half price (if they sign-up before January 15th). I am seeking servers. They too will feast at half price (if they sign-up before January 15th).

An Alternative For Blue Jeans

by Duchess Leah Kasmira of Natterhelm
Barony of al-Barran

A lot of medieval costumes, especially for men, call for pants. Unfortunately, most of today's pants do not look terribly well with the garb of the Middle Ages. In 1971 of the Common Era I found two books which have been of immeasurable help to me in costuming for the SCA. They are: Make Your Own Pants and Skirts by Irene Cumming Kleeberg and Sewing Without a Pattern by Phyllis Ficerotta. When I bought them, they were only 50¢ each at check-stands. The pattern for these pants is taken from the first book.

These pants are very simple to make and do not require much fabric. Ms. Kleeberg suggests that you start out with 3 yards of either 45" or 54" wide material. There will probably be a good bit left over. The pants call for an elastic waistline, but Koris prefers a drawstring. That's easily arranged, too. They will be the same width at the waist and the hip and will hang straight and wide, like pajama pants.

1. Find and note the measurements of the person for whom the pants are being made. Those will be: the hip at the widest, thigh at the widest and crotch length (this last one is crucial). To get the crotch length either a) sit on a table, chair or other sturdy flat surface and using a tape, measure down the side of the body from the point where the top of the pants will be to the chair edge, bending the tape around the body, or b) using a tape, measure around the middle of the body from the point where the top of the pants will be in the front to where the top will be in the back, passing the tape between the legs. The tape should remain more loose than taut when making either of these measurements.

2. Fold the fabric in half, crosswise. Then fold it again, lenghtwise (you now have 4 layers of fabric).

3. Divide your hip measurement in half and add to that 1" of "wiggle room" (i.e.: 36" divided by 2 = 18" + 1" = 19"). Now divide this figure by 2 and mark the spot on the top of the fabric where this measurement occurs, measuring from the folded edge out. Measure about 2"-3" down from this point (for top hem, drawstring casing, whatever) and draw a line. At right angles to this line, at the end, draw a line going down the the fabric about 15" long. This will denote the center front and back seams. Measure out from the top line about 1/2" and draw a line parallel to the 15" line. This will be the cutting line.

4. Find your crotch measurement on the 15" vertical line and add 1" for ease. Divide the thigh measurement by 2. Mark this measurement on the crotch line and draw a horizontal line connecting the two points. Draw a curve to connect the right angle, as in the illustration.

5. Measure from the crotchline to where you will want the pants to end and add 2"-3" for a hem. Then draw a line on either edge parallel to the line you just drew, about 1/2" to the outside, for a cutting line. Do this around the curve and all the way up to the top. Cut the pattern out along these outside lines.

6. Sew up the two center seams and press them open. Now turn the fabric so that the outside edges you drew are inside and facing each other. Spread the legs apart (they will look sort of like: ⊔) Pin down the seams and sew them up. Hem top and bottom (don't forget the elastic or drawstring) and they will be ready to wear.

For extra fullness, add a gusset to the center crotch. Not everyone likes this, as it takes away from a smooth, tailored line, but for fighting pants it's pretty necessary. Don't feel that you must make these pants as per the pattern, either. The legs can be long, short, full, narrow or some of each. The waist can be pleated or even tailored, and there is no restriction on how high it should come (as, dancing pants).

It is with great regret that we must announce the passing of

Lord Eldrik Dudley,

Squire to Duke Albert von Dreckenveldt, on November 22, 1987.

Squire Eldrik was 36 years old. He fell to the dread dragon, cancer.

Please read the following poem written for him by his sister, Mistress Zinaida Umanskaya of Ansteorra, and remember him.

The S

In memory of Lord Eldric Dud

A young Squire rode into the vale,
His manner brave and bold
His belt was red; his livery green
And counter-changed with gold.

Twelve crescents round his shield
did ring
A mighty dragon's head.
With courage he rode forth
to meet
The task that lay ahead.

Barren was the landscape;
Quiet all around.
No living thing grew, walked,
or crawled
Upon that rocky ground.

"Death", they called the valley.
O'er all a monster reigned
That maimed or killed all who came near
The heart of it's domain.

Yet high the Squire held up his head,
And proud his Arms did bear.
He reigned his horse. Dismounted.
And strode t'ward the monster's
lair.

Spirit of the Squire

ley, my brother. By Mstrs. Zinaida Umanskaya, Ansteorra

"Hold, Squire!" Came a call then.
He answered to the sound.
The Duke rode up, with Lothiar,
And he stopped and turned around.

"You cannot fight this monster dread
No comrades by your side.
Your friends and I will join
you here.
They wait the call to ride."

"Dear friends, the Fates have warned me that
My death has been foretold.
You can only lend me courage,
While I face this beast alone."

"I've been warned this death
is painful,
And told that it is slow.
Though it rend apart my body,
It cannot touch my soul."

It may be easy for a warrior
To call "Good stroke" or "Light"
When all he has at stake is just
His pride in a good fight.

In spite of our bravado,
We fight with sticks and foam.
It takes much more to take the field
And know you won't go home.

He could have run or tried
to hide,
Or cowed behind his shield.
Instead with spirit, tall with pride,
He stood upon the field.

He faced Death with the dignity
And courage of a Knight.
It mattered not about his waist
He wore the red, not white.

My Lords, I am a Noble,
And a Peer in all these lands;
Yet aspire to the example
Set by this simple man.

With this same Spirit I would live
And face each challenge new.
To do each day---one at a time---
The best that I can do.
